CHINA LOANS.

That House of Commons
Query.

GOVERNMENT EXPLANATION.

Britain And The Maritime Customs.

London, Dec. 11.

In view of the surprise expressed in Peking regarding the Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, Mr. Locker Lampson's statement in the House of Commons on December 8 relating to the security of British loans to China, the following is the text of the question and answer.

Mr. W. Foot Mitchell (Conservative) asked for the total amount of British capital loaned to China, and secured on the Chinese revenues administered by the Imperial Maritime Customs; whether there is a safeguard for payment in most cases other than the Maritime Customs, and whether in view of the proposed attempt to expel foreigners the Foreign Secretary could make any statement on British policy regarding this issue.

Mr. Locker Lampson said: "The outstanding amount of that portion of three Chinese Government loans is secured on the revenues of the Maritime Customs which was floated in London approximately £14,500,000."

"The total British holdings of all such loans of whatever issue are impossible to determine, but can be estimated at £20,000."

"Under present conditions there is no other source from which payment could be made except the Customs revenues."

"His Majesty's Government have every desire to see the maintenance intact of the Maritime Customs administration whose excellent services to the Chinese nation as a whole they believe are fully appreciated in China."—Reuter.

CHINA'S SECURITIES.

Surprise in London.

Peking, Dec. 10.

Mr. Locker Lampson's statement in the House of Commons that the Customs revenue was the only source whereon British capital loaned to China was secured, caused considerable surprise in financial circles where it is pointed out that the Anglo-French and Crisp loans are entirely secured on salt, and Hukang salt on salt, while the 1913 reorganisation loan is theoretically also secured on salt though met from the customs revenue in recent years.—Reuter.

Mr. Lampson Meets Canton Leaders.

Rugby, Dec. 10.

Although London is without official confirmation, Press telegrams report that Mr. Miles Lampson, the new British Minister to China, has reached Hankow, and has had informal conversation with some of the Cantonese officials.

Mr. Lampson's visit to Hankow was primarily undertaken to investigate the situation in the Yangtze Valley, and he has discussed local conditions with British Consular officers stationed at Kiukiang and elsewhere.

The newspapers report that Mr. Saburi, who was the Japanese delegate at the recent extraterritorial conference, is also in Hankow, and is in close contact with Mr. Lampson.

Conditions in Hankow are reported practically normal, the Cantonese authorities having checked the extremist labour elements.—British Wireless Service.

Chang Yi's Troops.

Foochow, Dec. 10.

General Chang Yi's troops surrendered to the Cantonese last night, the main condition being their incorporation in the Cantonese Army.—Reuter.

£3,250 FOR AUSTEN.

Rugby, Dec. 10.

It is stated, though unofficially, that the value of Peace Prize for 1925 is £3,500, in which case Sir Austen Chamberlain would receive £3,250, and General Charles Daves, a similar sum.—British Wireless Service.

FORGED NOTES?

IMPORTANT YAUMATI
RAID.

AN INSPECTOR'S COUP.

Amounting in face value to a fairly large sum of money, a quantity of Indo-China banknotes has been seized by the Criminal Investigation Department in Yaumati, leading, it is thought, to clues which will result in important discoveries.

Counterfeiters of paper money, especially of currencies of neighbouring countries, have been sending a small portion of their products to Hong Kong in the past.

Last night, Det. Sub-Inspector C. P. Fallon raided a house in Reclamation Street and found about a dozen or more of 100 piastre notes, alleged to be spurious.

It is noteworthy that Inspector Fallon has only been recently transferred to Yaumati on the retirement of Inspector W. Elliott.

Owing to extensive trade connections and the number of emigrants passing to and fro, there is a fair amount of Indo-China money in Hong Kong.

No other incriminating material was found, but it is believed that the Police are on the tracks of several "wanted" persons.

$16,000 HAUL.

OPIUM FOUND ON COAST
STEAMER.

"LUCHOW" MEN ARRESTED.

As a result of a search carried out yesterday by a party of revenue officers under the direction of Revenue Officer Ward, a large quantity of opium was discovered at the back of one of the boilers on board the s.s. "Luchow" (China Navigation Company) after the arrival of the steamer from Shanghai and Amoy. The seizure was made at 6.30 p.m.

The haul comprises 2,170 taels of raw opium (value $6,510) and 800 taels of prepared opium (value $9,600).

Three firemen have been arrested and it is understood that, in the event of conviction, the Police will press for a heavy fine. According to the scale on which fines are made in opium cases, defendants, if found guilty, would be liable to one of $161,100!

The men in question are to be charged later in the morning before Major C. Willson.

Later.

All three men were found guilty by the Magistrate. In view of the large amount involved, sentence was deferred till Monday.

ABOVE REPROACH.

GERMAN TREATY WITH ITALY.

Rugby, Dec. 10.

Regarding the Geneva report that Italy and Germany have drafted the terms of a treaty of arbitration and conciliation which is now ready for signature, it is understood in London that the measure comes within the framework of the Locarno agreements and is quite unexceptionable.

The "Times" says: "The new treaty differs in no essential respect from those Germany has already signed with Poland, Estonia, Switzerland and other countries."—British Wireless Service.

CANTON BANK STRIKE.

Concern is felt in Hong Kong at the developments following the strike of (and resumption of work by) bank clerks in Canton.

Of the nine establishments, two are branches of Hong Kong institutions (the Bank of Canton, Ltd., and the Bank of East Asia).

Although the Arbitration Board has secured the return to duty of the clerks, the bankers are still reluctant to discuss the men's demands on the ground that some of those insist on interference with the management, etc.

On the other hand it is felt that the question of salaries is of little consequence, but the bankers are adamant in adhering to their claim of unrestricted control over their own business.

HANKOW QUIET.

Mr. Eugene Chen Meets
Mr. Lampson.

SOCONY PLANT STRIKE.

A Clash With Yang Sen
Avoided.

Shanghai, Dec. 11.

A message from Hankow states that Gen. Yang Sen is reported to have endeavoured to commandeer British and American vessels to convey his troops, but the presence of foreign gunboats and the intervention of the British Consul obtained the withdrawal of his soldiers, who proceeded down river on Chinese transports, and an Italian vessel.—Reuter.

Hankow, Dec. 10.

The situation remains very quiet, the only incident of any importance being a strike at Socony's installation at Tanshuihue.

American gunboats have been sent down to guard the installation for the period of the strike.

A delegation from Canton headed by Mr. Eugene Chen arrived yesterday on the steamer "Woo-sung."

Later Mr. Eugene Chen called on Mr. Miles Lampson aboard H.M.S. "Petersfield."—Reuter.

DIVORCE REPORTS.

PROTECTING THE PUBLIC
MORALS.

A NEW LAW PASSED.

Rugby, Dec. 10.

The House of Commons has passed the third reading of a Bill which regulates the publication of reports of judicial proceedings "in such manner as to prevent injury to public morals."

The bill provides that in proceedings for divorce, nullity of marriage or judicial separation nothing shall be published except the names and addresses of parties, the grounds on which the proceedings are brought and resisted, submissions in points of law on the judge's summing up, the jury's findings and the judgment.—British Wireless Service.

Animated Debate.

London, Dec. 10.

After an animated debate, the House of Commons passed the third reading of the Judicial Proceedings Bill, the object of which is to prevent the publication of certain matter in connection with divorce cases which might be injurious to public morals.—Reuter.

COMING WONDERS.

TELEVISION & WIRELESS
POWER.

SENATORE MARCONI'S VIEWS.

Rugby, Dec. 10.

Senatore Marconi believes that during the next quarter of a century, developments in the means of obtaining directional wireless transmission and reception will probably be as great as the advances made in other directions since transatlantic wireless communication was established 25 years ago.

In an interview to-day, he emphasised the advantageous position of modern investigators compared with that of the pioneers who were without valves, amplifiers, super-sensitive heterodyne sets, directional transmitters and receivers and the means of making continuous waves.

Apart from ordinary transmission and reception of wireless messages, there was a possibility that transmission of power over moderate distances might be developed in the near future, and that television would become an actuality.—British Wireless Service.

SERIOUS ILLNESS CAUSES
ANXIETY.

A STRIKE CALLED OFF.

Tokyo, Dec. 10.

In deference to the Emperor's illness, which has definitely developed into pneumonia, the municipal tramwaymen held an urgent conference, at which it was decided to cancel the strike which they declared on Thursday night, conditionally on the authorities discharging none.—Reuter.

HOTEL BURGLARY.

JEWELLERY STOLEN FROM
"GLENEALY."

MR. J. C. THOMSON'S LOSS.

Believed to have effected their entry by scaling the roof of the adjoining building (a Chinese school) and sliding down a drain-pipe, cat-burglars stole from the Glenealy Hotel last night a pair of gold cuff links, a white sweater and set of dress studs and links, the property of Mr. J. C. Thomson, of the Hong Kong Electric Company, Ltd.

Mr. Thomson's was the only room entered. The burglars must have gone about their work with "cat-like" tread for the occupant reports that he was undisturbed throughout the night.

The police were informed this morning and detectives who carried out a search found the links, the property of Mr. J. C. Thomson, on the roof of the adjoining building, the burglars evidently been disturbed or dropped the links and been unable to locate them.

"BIG FIVE MEET."

LOCARNO PACT MATTERS
DISCUSSED.

"SATISFACTORY PROGRESS."

Geneva, Dec. 10.

"Satisfactory progress on the whole" was officially reported at the conclusion of the conference of the "Big Five," namely the representatives of the Locarno Powers, privately discussing the amelioration of the inter-allied military control of Germany, the evacuation of the Rhineland and other matters arising out of the Locarno Pact.

The conference was extended to-day by the inclusion of Baron Ishii, of Japan. The conference adjourned pending a meeting of the Council of Ambassadors in the afternoon.—Reuter.

Charge Against Britain.

Berlin, Dec. 10.

The disarmament of fortresses in East Germany and the export of war material are outstanding points requiring adjustment in the Big Five's discussions at Geneva.

The newspapers allege that Britain has demanded prohibition of the export of a number of unfinished steel products on the ground they can be used for military purposes, whereas the Germans contend that such prohibition would be a death blow to many factories. The papers hint that commercial considerations are behind Britain's attitude.—Reuter.

Experts' Report.

Paris, Dec. 10.

The question of the withdrawal of the Allied military control from Germany was not advanced as a result of the conference of ambassadors. The meeting learned that the Allied military experts were unanimously agreed that Germany's disarmament was in nowise complete. The ambassadors decided to send a full report to the Foreign Ministers at Geneva. The experts declared that German General von Fawel's explanations regarding the crucial points of the Eastern fortifications and traffic in war material was unsatisfactory. The next move lies with the Foreign Ministers.

PRINCE ACCEPTS.

YEAR.

Ottawa, Dec. 10.

At the opening of Parliament, the Governor-General, Lord Willingdon, announced that the Prince of Wales had accepted the invitation of the Canadian Government to visit Canada in 1927, in connection with the jubilee celebration of the Canadian confederation.—Reuter.

ALMOST NORMAL.

Local River Shipping Position.

3 MORE BOATS RESUME.

British Registry Changed to Chinese.

With three more boats resuming after a period of lying-up, Hong Kong river shipping is now practically in the same position as before the strike, i.e., in regard to numbers of vessels employed.

The Steamboat Co.'s "Sui Tai" is now alongside the Wing Lok wharf to-day and will leave for Macao to-morrow, she being the last of the fleet to get back on the run.

Meanwhile the "Kinshan" goes on the Canton run as the "Tai-shan" will be docked. The "Lungshan," therefore, takes her place on the night trips.

Another "outside" vessel to join the Hong Kong-Canton trade is the "Yee On," formerly the "Kock Ning." She has been on the West River for a number of years.

Financial Reasons.

To-day the "Chung On" (formerly the "Wah Sun") will leave Hong Kong for Shanghai—this being another branch of the local steamboat traffic which has been interrupted.

With the exception of the "Paul Beaz" and the "Charles Hardouin" of the Canton Navigation Co., river shipping is now at the normal level. These two boats (formerly under the French flag) under British registry are still lying idle owing to financial reasons. But in their place has come a new boat in the "Yuet On."

Of the smaller river steamboats running to ports on the West River other than Canton, a good many have changed from British to Chinese registry. Accordingly, it is anticipated that there will be an appreciable change in the next shipping returns.

RUBBER THREAT.

CEYLON AND RESTRICTION
SCHEME.

Colombo, Dec. 10.

With reference to the Motion before the Legislature expressing the opinion that Ceylon should now stand out from rubber restriction, "the readjustment of which in the recent instructions from the Secretary of State is 'uneconomic for Ceylon,'" the Secretary of State for Colonies, Mr. L. M. S. Amery, has telegraphed a warning of the serious effects on the industry if Ceylon abandons the rubber restrictions leading to an immediate fall in prices, which will hit Ceylon in the same degree as other places. Mr. Amery declares that maintenance of prosperous conditions for the rubber producers is a matter of real importance from the Empire viewpoint, hence our aim as urged by producers and users alike is to stabilise the price, and stability must be sought in a profitable level in order to encourage cultivation and promote research.

Mr. Amery points out that the new scale precludes alteration before next November, but before that period is extended he promises full considerations of any proposals advanced by Ceylon.—Reuter.

AMO'G BANDITS.

MISSIONARY'S JOURNEY TO RESCUE LADIES.

CONDUCT OF SOLDIERS.

Our readers will not have forgotten the Rev. C. F. Davies's stirring account of his 25 days' sojourn among the bandits. Here he tells how, set free, he goes back to Chowkiakow to rescue Mrs.
Davies and Miss Poppins. The light thrown on the conduct of the soldiers is particularly interesting.
Freedom, like health, is only valued when lost, or maybe when it is regained. Bondage of itself is to be dreaded, but when it is accompanied with dread of torture, being constantly the butt of rude and often vile jests, and the being constantly at the beck of any who would: the whole thing becomes most frightful. And then what a joyous char! It meant a move out of the bad environment of wickedness, with all its moral filth,
the finding oneself amongst clean men, being treated at least as an equal, and by some as a superior.
Such a thing needs to be experienced to be realised. It is true that I was being obliged to turn my back on Chowkiakow, the place I wanted to get to most, but even so it was a march to freedom, and so it was with utter joy that I set out for Yencheng. There was indeed a great welcome, but a severe disappointment awaited me. My escort had informed me that Mrs. Davies and Miss Poppins had left Chowkiakow and gone east towards Shanghai, but at Yencheng I was told that they were still at Chowkiakow, still in fear of further trouble, and anxiously awaiting an escort to a place of recuperation.

A Maddening Delay.
I arrived at Yencheng at a most opportune time, for General Yen had just been appointed to give military protection to Chowkiakow and district, and the great man himself had already embarked on the boat prepared for him and was fixed to start the next day. Mr.
Davies of Yencheng had also secured a place on one of the General's boats, and so I was just in time to have a night's rest before joining the party. Having of course no baggage of my own, kind friends of Yencheng provided me with a change of clothes and also some bedding, and at daylight we started out for the boat. Alas, our hurry was not shared by General Yen, or his men. A light rain was falling, and after waiting some three hours
so impatient that no start would be made that day. It turned out that the party of troops, amounting in all to about 1,500, were taking all precautions against surprise and it was planned for some hundreds to walk on either side of the river to shield the boats from any possible surprise attack from bandits.
They of course were not prepared to walk in the rain, and so fine weather was all important. I was kept to start for the relief of the ladies in Chowkiakow, but had been kept enough in China to resign myself to inevitable delays for trifling reasons, and so we returned to the Mission House. This meant a start on correspondence long delayed, and the time to rid myself of a month-old beard.

The Unwelcome Guests.
The weather cleared the next day and we really made a start. It is true that the bandits were still making havoc for a radius of some ten miles west of Chowkiakow, but our dignity as a party as well as safety could not be prejudiced by that, and so progress was far from hurried. But six miles out from Yencheng, a halt was made to accept the hospitality of the local magnates of a village there.
This of course was enforced kindness, for messengers had apprised
the people of our coming. Poor folk, they had no reason to do anything for these troops, and the only reward they received was to be looted by soldiers of the same Division but eight days later. After this trying delay we actually did make some progress, and that night anchored at Hsiao Yao, the place where I had put in a painful nine days of captivity, a short time previously. At this place the General's brother was in charge of one of his regiments, so this of course meant the going ashore of the chief,
and a consequent delay the next morning.

A Craven Policy.
By this time we were less than 15 miles from the town of Tentsuen, the town where the bandits were camped, and extraordinary pains were taken to save ourselves from trouble. The boats were anchored some ten miles about Tentsuen, and the word soon went round that no start would be made again until the next morning. Being under the General's escort, it was not ours to reason why; but nevertheless we reasoned rather furiously.
We numbered some 1,500, at Hsiao Yao another 1,000 could have been brought on, and a fast messenger could have taken orders to the Brigadier at Chowkiakow to fetch out two or three thousand more, and to our seeming Tentsuen could well have been surrounded, and notwithstanding superior numbers, we could by the weight of arms, have overcome the bandits, and taken much spoils. Instead of this we merely anchored, and waited until the marauders had moved out of Tenssuen, before we dared move on. If we are to believe reports that came to us, a message had been sent to them to move out which came they kindly did, and so the next morning we sailed triumphantly past Tentsuen, our General's boat having a big gun mounted to save that dear man at least from any danger.

Chowkiakow at Last.

The welcome at Chowkiakow is something merely to be mentioned.
The month of weary strain had made its toll on the strength of the foreign ladies there, and their relief at our coming is beyond describing. Then too we had to see ever so many friends who came to welcome us. All had in some way suffered, but they felt that one had suffered more, and the welcome was so great as to be made with tears, even from strong men. The fellowship of joy is nothing to the fellowship of suffering.
At Chowkiakow we learnt that in some ways the soldier deliverers had been far from an unmixed blessing. The bandits had destroyed our house property, but had done little damage to the schools. When the soldiers came, a regiment of them at first used our school, and then I suppose they feared complaints, and so moved out. This was done without going empty, for the girl's school was stripped practically bare. We tried to interview our General, but it seems that the rigours of the journey required much rest, and so we were sent to the Colonel of the offending regiment.

Soldiers' Barred Theft.
This gentleman graciously allowed us to see him, and pressed us to sit on our own chairs taken out of our compound by his men. We showed him a list of the property taken, but he refused it all except of course the furniture we saw in the Guest Hall and a very little more. As for that, he stated that their need was the reason of taking it, but that we were permitted to have it back when his men were finished with it. Such magnanimity was rather overpowering, but we yet dared to suggest that his men had taken other valuable property that had likely been destroyed for the sake of fuel. The excellent man was pleased to show a great amount of protestation verging on a show of temper, and we were obliged to let him down lightly and take our leave. It will be seen that some of these men in authority are not waiting for the removal of extrajurisdiction rights by the Chinese Government before depriving us, as far as they may, of such rights.

The General of the Division was under orders to provide us with an adequate escort to take the ladies to Yencheng, and the importance of this matter caused me to refrain from using much pressure then to get back our pillored property.
A Narrow Shave.
After four busy days, when arrangements were made for a month's absence, we started back to Yencheng. This matter had caused me some anxiety, but evidently the instructions concerning escort were fully adequate, for on the day of departure 60 Braves were ready to march along the bank up river. Changes were made en route, and it fell out that during the journey of 50 miles four different sets of men were told off to escort us. In all seeming we had no cause for alarm, but actually we were near what I later knew to be great peril. At one section of the river a party of bandits came to look for us. They did not get up to us, but they it people of another boat who for some reason slightly exaggerated the strength of our escort and so the bandits dared not come after us. Just what it would have meant had this band, with hopes frustrated in the matter of my release, got hold of us all, is too frightful to think of.
More Looting by Soldiers.
At the end of the third day on the way back to Yencheng, we reached the village where the week previously, our General had, been entertained. This time no welcome was afforded us, but instead, the gates were closed as the people actually feared harm from the soldier protectors of their own district. Our worthy Braves were so righteously indignant, that they threatened to bombard the place if the doors were not opened to us.

Eventually this was done, and the same night the soldiers insisted that for the sake of adequate protection we should rest in the village and not on the boat.

The next day we learnt the reason why of such forthright. We were to stay in the village to give them more freedom to help themselves to whatever they desired of the villagers' possessions. Some of the lot found its way on to our boat.
It was with great relief that the next day before noon the whistle of a train engine was heard, and the ladies and school girls with us, were eager for the first sight of the railway bridge. We were not allowed to go without one more difficulty however, for on arrival, the Captain came along and with his followers around him asked for compensation for their 60 h. of escort. I told him that if, course-they should be allowed their living, but I pointed out that I had already suffered the loss of home, and that tens of thousands were involved, and so argued that the matter of compensation must be specially considered before paid. This in the end caused them to think that it was better to go without. In Chowkiakow Chinese persistently told me that some 500 men of the same Division had helped in the bandit raid on Chowkiakow where of course we had suffered. If this indeed be true it is no wonder that our men refrained from pressing for escort payment.

Thanks to Wu Pei-fu.
It was fine to arrive safely amongst friends, and I am glad to express warm gratitude for the fine help and sympathy of so many who gave us just the help needed. One regret is that I had no opportunity personally to thank Marshal Wu Pei-fu, who in the midst of a multitude of other affairs used efficient means towards my release and the escort of my wife and Miss Poppins
a place of refuge.—"N. C. Daily

HIGH HONOURS.

A UNIQUE EPISODE ON THE ATLANTIC.

POPULAR FIGURES.

Honours are few and far between in the Merchant Service, yet quite by coincidence, while the White Star liner "Olympic" and the United States Lines liner "Leviathan" were crossing the Atlantic from New York to Southampton, both their commanders were notified by wireless that honours high and well deserved had been awarded them.

The two great ships were practically together all the way across the ocean. They docked within 30 minutes of one another at Southampton and, strangely enough, the wireless message announcing the honours paid to the commanders were received on the same day with only the difference of a few hours.

The message from Britain informed Capt. W. Marshall, C.B., D.S.O., R.D., the commander of the "Olympic," that he had been appointed Royal Naval Reserve Aide-de-Camp to His Majesty the King, while that from America received on board the "Leviathan" was addressed to Captain Herbert Hartley and read: "The Board has to-day approved your nomination as commodore of the United States Lines. This is your authority to fly the flag."

In consequence of the latter wireless message the "Leviathan" came into port flying the commodore's pennant at her masthead.

Both commanders are popular figures in ocean travel, and both have had honours heaped upon them in the past. Modest though Captain Marshall and Captain Hartley are, the happy news flashed through their respective ships like magic, with a result that passengers flocked to the commanders' quarters, all desirous of showering congratulations. Other well-wishes came by wireless, and one of these to Capt. Hartley was from Mr. Vanderbilt, the famous American millionaire.

Captain Marshall, who was born at Liverpool, but now lives at Southampton, was last honoured in June, 1925, when his name figured in the King's Birthday Honours, indicating that he had the Order of Companion of the Bath conferred upon him.

Prior to that he was twice decorated during the war, first with the Distinguished Service Order, in July, 1916, for the particularly perilous work he had carried out, and later in June, 1918, with a bar to that decoration.

Captain Marshall has thus been three times decorated by the King, and the last time he appeared before His Majesty he was honoured with a private audience. He en-

BILLS OF LADING.

SIMPLICITY OF OLD-TIME
DOCUMENTS.

[To The Editor of "Lloyd's List"]

Sir,—It is always a matter of interest to record old documents when they come to light, and your recent inclusion of an early policy leads me to submit to you a copy of two bills of lading of the 14th century which have been sent to me by my friend Dr. Tempora, of the University of Genoa. I would that the modern bills of lading were so simple.—Yours faithfully,

W. E. Found.
Lloyd's, Oct. 6.
The translation of the Latin texts of the bills of lading to which Mr. Found refers is as under:—

I. 1390 the 25th day of June. Know all men that Antony Ghileta shipped certain wax and certain hides in the name and on behalf of Symon Marabottus, which things he must deliver at Pisa to Mr. Percival de Gualis; and by order of the said Mr. Percival ye shall deliver all his things to Marcelino de Nigro, his Agent, and I Bartolomeus de Octono, shall deliver all his goods at Portovenere and for better caution I affix my mark so.
A copy.

joys a distinction believed to be unique—namely, he served his apprenticeship in the White Star Line sailing ships, and was appointed third officer after two voyages.

Captain Hartley has been commander of the "Leviathan," the largest American liner, since she entered the service in June, 1923. The honour of being promoted commodore has come to him after 33 years at sea, during which he has crossed the Atlantic 823 times.

He has served his country both in Merchant Service and the National Reserve Force, the latter during the war, and he first became known to Southamptonians when sailing in the old American Line steamers "St. Louis" and "St. Paul." In his case, too, the honour is well deserved.

SINGAPORE BASE.

SERVES AS TARGET FOR JAPANESE CRITICS.

A DISTURBING FACTOR.

Though not attacking the Singapore Base as virulently as when the project was first announced, the vernacular papers are still unanimous in expressing the belief that the base is aimed primarily at Japan and consequently denounce it as a disturbing factor in Pacific relations.

With the purpose of discovering whether this view was truly representative, Reuters's correspondent interviewed several leading personalities and discussed with them the question frankly, promising to reveal no names.

The impression thus gained is that even Anglophiles though endeavouring to persuade themselves that the opinions of the vernacular papers are incorrect find difficulty because the British Government, though denying that the project is directed against Japan, does not explain why, then, it is necessary to make the base large enough to accommodate capital ships, as her only other potential enemies in the Far East are France, Holland and America. The naval forces of the first two Powers, in these waters, do not require capital ships to suppress them, whilst the general opinion in Japan is that a war between Britain and America is unthinkable.

Briefly, the Japanese consider it reasonable that Britain should make provision for repelling, refuelling and accommodating auxiliary vessels for use against commerce raiders, but it is difficult for them to understand the necessity for capital ships if the base is not aimed at Japan.

Though voicing objection to the Singapore Base, some Japanese, however, frankly admit they would advocate the same precautions if Japan were in England's place.

FREIGHTS ACTIVE.

SHIPMENTS TO U.S.A.
SLUGGISH.

Messrs. Wheelock and Company, Shanghai, in their fortnightly report of the local freight markets dated Nov. 25, state that exports to the United Kingdom and Continent has continued quite active, and that there has been a fair amount of through cargo coming down from Hankow, the regular export season for cereal being now in full swing.

The report continues: The Dalm market, which had suffered a slight relapse during the past fortnight, has now recovered again on account of the scarcity of tonnage and opens very firm with an upward tendency for this reason;—stocks of bean-oil, however, are entirely exhausted and no new oil is coming into the market at present so there is a weakness in the rates for bulk-oil. As regards beans and oil from Vladivostok the same remarks apply.

As a result of good crops in North China, the Conference steamers are receiving good support from Northern Ports and this is the reason for the scarcity of tonnage offering at Dalm.

A SATURDAY CAUSERIE.

Hong Kong is a dull place: we are often told. We prefer it so if the only alternative is to transform it into a centre of "high" life for the benefit of a few who like to turn night into day to excite their jaded senses. But a "brighter Hong Kong" movement, need not necessarily be conducted with this end in view. What about fairs or fetes at regular intervals—either by private enterprise or otherwise—something after the style of the "heather day" celebrations which were such a pleasant feature of social life here during the War? For proof that a well-conducted fair or fete, offering a variety of attractions, will draw hundreds of the younger generation—and a surprising number of the older too—one had only to observe the merry crowds that thronged the Catholic Cathedral compound on the occasion of the annual al fresco fete held under the auspices of St. Vincent de Paul. If there were only more of such attractions, affording opportunities for wholesome fun, the motion at a recent local debate that "the days of 'Merrie England' were happier than the present" would not, perhaps, have met with the support of many members of the audience who were doubtless influenced by the application of the arguments brought forward to local conditions.

The Philharmonic Society has had no reason to regret the change of policy which the presentation of the first Gilbert and Sullivan opera two years ago inaugurated. Since "The Yeoman of the Guard," there have been equally as successful presentations of "The Gondoliers" and "Iolanthe" and the Society has added still further to its laurels by the thorough manner in which it presented last night "The Pirates of Penzance"—one of the most entertaining operas that has come from the fertile minds of Gilbert and Sullivan. The primary object of the Society is to give recitals of good music. Unfortunately, good music has come to be known as "high-brow" stuff and the term at once antagonises the very class it is sought to interest. The Society has not abandoned its efforts to give what is really good by concentrating on comic opera. It may be pandering to a wish—or rather meeting it, by giving what is good—or "high-brow" stuff in another connection. Sullivan has survived the test of all classical music—the test of repetition. People come to it again, and again—as was evidenced by the excellent attendance last night—to be refreshed in mind and spirit and to realise that there is a champagne in music as there is, also, a drug. It is true that Gilbert is not behindhand. His contribution of sparkling dialogue, witty repartee and humorous situation adds its own share to the joint success achieved and is nowhere so clearly marked as in "The Pirates of Penzance." There is every indication that, in spite of the absence of old friends among the principals, this opera will go down as one of the most successful in the history of the Society.

On the Continent, travel is attended by far more inconvenience in the matter of passport and visa regulations than is fortunately the case in the undertaking of considerably longer journeys to and from the East. A growing consciousness of the futility of many of the irksome restrictions on the free movement of subjects of friendly Powers found expression earlier in the year in a conference which was held at Geneva for the purpose of considering the question of simplifying and cheapening the passport and visa procedure. Even more significant is the request of the German Government this week for the abolition of visas between Great Britain and Germany, in that the department from which the request emanated—the Foreign Office—is one which is associated in the public mind with the most extreme officialdom in such matters. Although the period for which a passport is available has been lengthened from two years to five, there are still many here in Hong Kong, as elsewhere, who are caught napping when they are called to undertake a journey at short notice. It is difficult to see what can replace the passport as a certificate of naturalisation, identity and, to some slight extent, of respectability, but, having regard to the fact that a passport is an official recognition of the photograph of an individual and his nationality, is it not reasonable to ask that the validity of the passport should last so long as that photograph sufficiently resembles him?

Mr. and Mrs. R. N. MacLeod have returned to Shanghai from a holiday spent at Home.

Senator William M. Butler who is a guest at the White House, said that he did not intend to retire as Chairman of the Republican National Committee because of his defeat by Senator David I. Walsh in the Massachusetts Senatorial contest on November 2. President Coolidge also indicated that he saw no reason for Senator Butler to retire from the chairmanship of the Committee.

MATILDA HOSPITAL.

Open to the "Poor and Indigent."

NO SALARY "BAR."

How Institution is Administered.

Although the Matilda Hospital is a private institution, the administration of which is not affected by changes in Government policy, the controversy as to increased medical rates in other Hospitals serves to draw attention to the admirable work carried on at Mt. Kellett.

Contrary to general impression, it may be interesting to note that there is no stipulation in the Matilda Hospital debarbing the admission of patients with a salary of more than $300 a month. Hence, the suggestion that is sometimes heard that, in view of greatly enhanced costs of living and the satisfactory financial position of the Hospital, such a "stipulation" might be revised, is based on a fallacy.

The fixing of a certain salary as a maximum would obviously lead to anomalies in that some have greater encumbrances than others and the policy which has governed admittance to the Hospital since its foundation in 1896 is that patients who cannot afford to pay ordinary medical fees shall be considered eligible for admittance to the Matilda. In regard to any possible extension of this policy, the trustees are bound by the terms of the trust.

Enlarging Accommodation.
The present accommodation of the Matilda Hospital provides for 36 beds, but work is in hand for the provision of a dozen more, the sisters having been provided with new quarters, and the work of converting the old into new wards having begun. These wards will be very useful in the summer when the accommodation at present available is taxed to the uttermost. Improvements are also in hand in the matter of the water and heating supply, providing for the installation of an entirely new service.

Such additions will add to the conveniences of an already up-to-date and well equipped hospital. The charm of its situation is well known to such as have been patients or have paid visits. Commanding a view which is bound on the one side by Mrs. Bay, on the other beyond Gap Rock and the mouth of the Canton river, the stretch which is under observation to the onlooker comprises 3,400 square miles. The Hospital grounds are trim and neat and the main hospital block, the sisters' quarters and the maternity block are as pleasantly situated to the eye as they are well placed for catching the health-giving breezes and sunshine. The Hospital has its own X-ray plant, dispensary, laboratory, etc.

History of the Hospital.
It may be interesting to those of our readers who are unacquainted with the circumstances of the founding of the Hospital to recall such as come to mind. It owes its foundation to the late Mr. Granville Sharp after whose wife, Matilda, it was named. Mr. Sharp, whose association with the Colony dated to the early days of Sir Paul Chater here, was interested in land speculation. He is stated to have been a well-read man, somewhat advanced in thought, and from the time of his earliest associations with Hong Kong, he was desirous of being in a position before he left of building a Hospital which would be of benefit to the poor.

Terms of Bequest.
The idea developed in his mind during the period immediately following his wife Matilda's death in 1892 but the Hospital did not come into being until after his death owing to the dropping out of the scheme of a brother-in-law who was originally to have participated. After leaving legacies to his immediate relatives, Mr. Sharp, in his will, left the residue for the purpose of founding an institution which should be "for the benefit of the poor, the indigent and the forsaken." These words have, naturally enough, been difficult to construe. After Mr. Sharp's death there was a lawsuit (in 1904) in which some of the relatives contested the will, the result being that the estate was more or less in Chancery.

Dr. J. H. Sanders, the present medical officer in charge of the Hospital, came out to Hong Kong in 1906 to set the institution going as a purely private charitable concern, which it has remained since. Trustees have since been appointed, the present Chairman being Mr. A. H. Barlow. The late Sir Paul Chater was also a Chairman.

Early Opposition.
There was at first opposition to the Hospital in that it was

A $1,000 BOND.

ACTION BY A FORMER PARTNER.

A SUMMARY COURT CASE.

A bond for $1,000 as security against possible arrears of rent figured in a Summary Court case yesterday in which the plaintiff was Mr. N. L. Brewer, of the Victoria Hotel, Kowloon, and the defendants, Messrs. Brewer and Company, booksellers of Pedder Street, in which concern plaintiff was formerly a partner.

Mr. M. W. Lo appeared for the defendants and plaintiff conducted his own case.

Following an argument as to whether the Summary Court had jurisdiction in the case, plaintiff amended the writ to read "the plaintiff's claim is for the payment by the defendants to the plaintiff of $1,000 or so much thereof as is now owing to the Chinese Estates Ltd."

Plaintiff explained that the bond remained void, so long as the rent was paid. Rent was now owing and, although plaintiff's association with the defendant company's business had ceased, he was still held liable under the bond. The bond itself stated that Messrs. Pasco and Brewer were guarantors to the lessee and went on to state that the lessee accepted it in lieu of the deposit.

Mr. Brewer quoted several cases in support of his case. He said he would be none the richer if the $1,000 was awarded him as it belonged to the lessors.

Mr. M. W. Lo said that the plaintiff was backing out of his contract. He had come to Court to ask to be released from his bond. The landlord had a right to hold him to it.

Mr. Justice Wood thought that the bond was still in force and plaintiff could not get out of his responsibility.

Mr. Lo: He wants $1,000, and if it is accepted by the landlord the bond would be done away with.

After further argument, Mr. Lo agreed that as the writ was amended, Mr. Brewer could not back out of it.

Mr. Lo then argued that Mr. Brewer's liability would not arise until the lease terminated. At present there was no liability of any kind.

Mr. Justice Wood referring to the bond, said that liability arose immediately on default. Mr. Lo eventually agreed.

At this stage the case was adjourned until 11.45 a.m. on Monday.

STOLE BUS TICKETS.

HARD LABOUR FOR CONDUCTORS.

Two bus conductors were convicted at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday of stealing 815 bus tickets, the property of the Kai Tak Motor Bus Company.

Mr. Losepy, who defended on behalf of one of the men, pleaded guilty, and said that the tickets could easily be taken from the premises. He asked his Worship to believe that the boy was led astray by his elders.

Inspector Phillips agreed with defending solicitor's statement with regard to the temptation put in the way of employees. It was the easiest thing possible to take tickets from the office without being observed.

When asked if the manager was present, his Worship was told that he had not come to Court, but had sent a clerk to prosecute on behalf of the Company.

Speaking to the clerk his Worship asked why the manager had not come to Court and was told that the clerk had been sent because he knew more of the case than the manager and also that the latter was busy yesterday morning.

His Worship: In fact he does not manage the company. You are the person who is responsible for this extraordinarily slack supervision.

His Worship imposed sentence of one month's hard labour each.

thought it would interfere with the work of private practitioners and, again, that it would induce ne'er-do-wells to loaf here. Any such possibility was, however, removed by the action of the trustees in deciding that people who could not afford ordinary medical fees should be considered "poor" within the meaning of the trust and that a doctor's recommendation should suffice.

For thirty years, the Matilda Hospital has been a god-send to those who, without it, would have been unable to obtain the medical attention of which they stood in need. Their gratitude for benefits received is expressed in many letters received by the Hospital management by former patients.

"SUNNING" PIRACY.

WHY THE SHIP WAS FIRED.

3RD ENGINEER'S EVIDENCE.

The trial of the twenty men alleged to have participated in the "Sunning" piracy was continued at the Magistrate's court yesterday afternoon when evidence was given by Mr. Andrew Doherty, 3rd Engineer of the ship. Witness said that he was in the engine room at 2.50 p.m. on November 15. At 4 o'clock he sent a greaser up to the 2nd Engineer, but when the man got to the top of the platform, he was chased down by a Chinese armed with a gun. Witness was relieved by the Chief Officer. When he reached the saloon deck, he saw two armed men. He was allowed to pass to his room which he found all upside down, the contents of his drawers being strewn over the floor.

Mr. Holmes: When did you last see Mr. Lapsley?—About 11.30 p.m.

Continuing, witness said that he heard the "shooting" and remembered hearing the Chief Engineer shout "My God! My God! Don't shoot." The Chief Engineer came into the Captain's room wounded. Witness afterwards assisted those below to get through the skylight.

Questioned with regard to the fire, witness said that he first saw smoke at about 8 a.m. "I saw some pipes setting fire to one of the lifeboats, and I fired. I also fired from the top of the wireless house to the poop."

Witness said that later on, he left the ship in No. 2 life-boat and was subsequently picked up by a Norwegian steamer and later transferred to "H.M.S. 'Verity'" which brought him to Hong Kong.

Mr. Holmes: Can you identify any of the pirates to whom you have referred?—Yes. No. 2 was always walking round the saloon deck. I saw No. 3 in the Chief Officer's room and I am quite convinced that No. 5 was the fellow who walked through the saloon with a gun whilst we were having dinner. I found No. 20 in my cabin on one occasion before dinner.

Witness added that he recognised No. 19, who was the ship's carpenter. He did not see that man participate in the piracy.

Replying to the 3rd defendant, witness stated: "I saw you dozens of times from 5 o'clock onwards."

Cross Examination.

Cross-examined by Mr. d'Amada, witness said that he was not informed that the "Bluebell" had picked up a boat until he reached Hong Kong.

Mr. d'Amada: Was that before you attended an identification parade at the Police Station?—Yes.

Mr. Lo: I want to ask you whether you agree with the views expressed by Mr. Orr. He expressed the opinion that the pirates deliberately set fire to the boats and centre castle of the ship in order to remove all evidence of the piracy. Do you agree with that?—Yes.

Mr. Lo: Mr. Orr also stated that he heard or saw firing up to 4.15, but that he heard no firing afterwards. Do you agree?—Yes. I did not hear any.

Mr. Lo: Mr. Orr also said that it was his opinion at the time that when the second boat left, all the able-bodied pirates had left the ship. We didn't leave for some time. I was doubtful and took precautions before the boat was lowered.

Mr. Lo: What was your view when you were leaving?—I did not think of anything like that.

Mr. Lo: I do want you to think very carefully. This is a very serious matter from the point of view of people who may be innocent. In view of your strong view that the setting fire to the ship was deliberate, do you now express the view that all the pirates, except the wounded and dead, left by the two boats?—I thought that if all the pirates had left, why were they so anxious about the boats? We were guarding, and why did they send a message asking for a boat?

Mr. Lo: This is very interesting. May I ask if you gave that information to the Crown Solicitor?—I cannot remember.

Mr. Lo: You are not mixing that up with what the newspapers have called an armistice?—Perhaps. I am.

Mr. Lo: Bearing in mind the circumstances, do you now agree with the opinion that Mr. Orr entertained?—I still do not think that all the surviving pirates left the ship.

Mr. Lo: You now think that in doing what they did, they were

THE OIL TRIAL.

DOHENY ON "JAPANESE MENACE."

Washington, Dec. 10. Cross-examined in the Oil Conspiracy case Mr. Doherty asserted that it was the "Japanese menace" of 1921 which induced him to embark on the Elk Hills Lease-Pearl Harbour Storage contract.

He said that Admiral Robinson, Chief of the Naval Bureau of Engineering patriotically appealed to him to ensure the American Navy an adequate supply of oil in Hawaii lest the Japanese threat should materialise and United States find itself in the position of Belgium when invaded by the Germans.

Mr. Doherty added that Admiral Robinson confided to him that the United States Government called the Armament Conference for the purpose of having other nations confront Japan.

Adverting to the $3100,000 loan made to Mr. Fall, Mr. Doherty insisted that it was merely a personal transaction and not connected with the pending oil contracts.—Reuter's American Service.

WHEN "HIG H KICKING" (IN SOCCER) DOES NOT PAY.

Ballooning the ball—to use a favourite soccer term, was resorted to by the South China team in last Saturday's senior league match at Happy Valley. Such tactics did not pay as the Hong Kong F.C. won by 2 goals to nil and preferred to kick ahead instead of into the clouds. Above is the cartoonist's view of how "hide-and-seek" was played.

ROYAL AIR FORCE.

FEWER FATAL ACCIDENTS TO-DAY.

Rugby, Dec. 10.

An official report on the British Air Force says the machines and engines were subjected to much more drastic examination than those of other countries.

Technical and scientific experiments were constantly being made to introduce new types of machines more easily controlled, and safety devices for diminishing the likelihood of accidents.

All recommendations made to prevent accidents were most carefully studied. These reports showed no particular machine was specially liable to accident, and an important fact which emerged was that when account was taken of the number of flying hours in units of the Air Force and auxiliary units, the proportion of fatal accidents are tending to decrease.

Despite recent accidents, the present year was in this respect the second best in the experience of the Air Force.—British Wireless Service.

COAL PEACE.

OVER 800,000 MEN NOW AT WORK.

Rugby, Dec. 10.

Over 800,000 miners are now at work, and if the demand for coal is increased as a result of further price reductions, considerably more men will be employed, and permanent unemployment among miners as a result of the stoppage will be much less than had been feared.

The last of the export embargoes will be removed by midnight on Sunday, after which anthracite and coke may be freely exported.

The Council of the Mining Association, which is the coal owners' organisation, yesterday approved the formation of joint pit committees, including representatives of the workmen, and also decided to contribute to the research fund.—British Wireless Service.

ALLEGED FRIENDSHIP TO CHINA.

MOSCOW TRICKERY.

"Mai Kwei" writes to the "Shanghai Times":

Is China for ever going to be defooled by the smooth tongued platitudes and honeyed protestations of amity and friendship on the part of Russia? Profuse were the protests of friendship at the time in 1880, when by the treaty of Livadia, peacefully and in the very best interests of her dear friend China, Russia, relieved the latter country of that vast region of ill known as the Kuldja Steppes.

At the time of this scandalous rape of China's territory for which there was no excuse and no subsequent attempt at restitution or recompense! Russian diplomacy, through tricksters at the Chinese capital, was continuously warning capital, was honeyed words against the outrageous "imperial" designs against China's territory and China's sovereign rights on the part of all and sundry foreign Powers except Russia. It is a curious record of history, however, that in those days, although the other foreign Powers got the abuse and opprobrium, the honeyed words of Russia masked that country's rape of China's territories. There is no one bit of difference to-day in Russia's diplomacy or designs towards China, only the policy of peaceful penetration has changed its hallmark to that of Sovietization, as, to wit, the Sovietization of Mongolia which has made that vast region as solidly a part of "imperialistic Sovietic" Russia as is the Kuldja or Murskia.

Yes, peaceful penetration and more peaceful acquisition were the territorial raping methods of Russia in the days of half a century ago, and since then the bear has not lost the tricks and arts of the "bunny hug."

Sovietism has unquestionably destroyed Russia's power for construction, industrially and commercially. It has beaten out of all existence the desire of the individual to succeed, since the moment an individual does show signs of success he immediately becomes the prey of those who can't succeed or don't desire to succeed, and everything pertaining to the successful one is seized and sacrificed on the altar of incapacity and unscrupulousness.

However, Sovietized Russia has not lost the necessity for the process of means of living, but since the initiative of the individual to produce these has been entirely eliminated such necessities must be grabbed from Russia's nearest and weakest neighbours. It is Russia's peaceful intention, so to weaken China by internal disorders that she will become a very easy prey for that peaceful process of territorial rape which Russia, once having learned, has never forgotten. No effort is being spared or will be spared by Sovietistic Russia to enfeeble China through internal strife until China collapses at the feet of Russia through the sheer exhaustion of strife and the elimination of China's fighting, and therefore resisting forces.

Russia, with this set object continually in mind, is with set purpose sending emissaries to various parts of China to breed and foster discontent and to use every means in the power of such emissaries to set one Chinese faction against another so as to hasten the day of exhaustion. The sending of such emissaries is contrary to China's declared policy as disclosed in the Peking agreement of 1924, which states, "Article VI":

"The Governments of the two contracting parties mutually pledge themselves not to permit, within their respective territories the existence and/or activities of any organisations or groups whose aim is to struggle by acts of violence against the governments of either contracting party. The Governments of the two contracting parties further pledge themselves not to engage in propaganda directed against the political and social systems of either contracting party."

Was there ever in the annals of history a greater or more vile prostitution of the functions of diplomacy than that perpetrated by the Soviet representative, L. M. Karakhan, when he appended his signature to such a document at the very time he was financing Russian "Red" forces in Canton and a most virulent campaign of propaganda in the vicinity of Shanghai against the Government of China in Peking. If no faith can be placed in the spoken or written word of the accredited minister of one country in the capital of another country, then the functions of diplomacy have broken down and the aggrieved country has an inalienable right to refuse the present Russian Minister any diplomatic courtesy either in Peking or any other part of China, and in fact can refuse in the face of Article VI of the 1921 agreement to allow the said Russian Minister or other representatives to stay in or move about the country in any capacity since they are dangerous propagandists and/or encouragers of acts of violence against the sovereign state of China.

NEED FOR CAUTION.

JAPAN AND THE CHANGES IN CHINA.

Dealing with the situation in China, the "Hochi" in an editorial writes:—"The fact that military and political leaders in the North are now sitting in conference in Peking clearly shows that the influence of the Southern forces has virtually extended to a wider circle. In case the Canton Government is removed to Wuchang it naturally follows that the unification of the provinces in the South, which is a cherished object of the Kuomintang Party, may be realised though nominally, and that the Southern and Northern Governments on an equal footing will come into existence. In that case, the relations between China and the Powers will become more complicated than ever. Japan, therefore, should be very careful at this juncture not to make any mistake in her policy towards China."

BIRTH CONTROL.

GIRLS TOLD TO BURN LEAFLETS.

PROPAGANDA IN LONDON.

Officials of the National Council of Women protested on October 23 against the distribution of birth control literature to young girls outside the entrance door of Church House, London, while the council was holding a meeting for girls.

The hall was crowded with Girl Guides, Camp Fire Girls, and others between the ages of thirteen and seventeen. Mrs. George Morgan, vice-president of the council, discovered that many had been given birth control pamphlets.

She immediately asked the girls to burn the leaflets without reading them.

"We stopped the distribution of the literature at once," said Mrs. Morgan to a representative of the press. "It seemed particularly disgraceful because it was distributed only to the girls, not to any one attending our meetings for grown people."

An official of a birth control society stated that the practice was contrary to the rules of the society, and that the pamphlets must have been distributed by an irresponsible person.

Lending a Hand to Mother Nature

1. Strippling the small Cut-throat Trout.
2. Over 2000 potential cut-throats. Measuring the eggs into the open mesh baskets in the floating pontoon hatchery unit.

Unfortunately Mother Nature made no provision for the growing army of Isak Walton in her scheme of things. Man supplements nature in re-stocking the trout streams of the Canadian Pacific Rockies, through the agency of the Department of Marine and Fisheries, which conducts artificial Cut-throat spawning and hatching operation in the Rockies each spring.

Authorities have estimated that only about three percent of all Cut-throat trout, eggs naturally spawned, hatch. The reason given is the desire of fish spawning at other times to feed on the newly laid eggs with the result that the male Cut-throat, after driving off the females, fertilizes the eggs too late, when they have absorbed so much water that they cannot absorb the fertilizing fluid.

From 87 to 90 percent of eggs artificially spawned at Banff and Spray Lakes, hatch under artificial methods. This is how it is done: Towards the end of March just before spawning time the trout are caught in nets, stripped, and returned to the streams, while the eggs from the female and fertilizing fluid from the male Cut-throat are mixed. In ten weeks the young fry is ready for its new home in the trout stream where it reaches the length of over eight inches in about four years.

The annual spring harvest of Cut-throat eggs at Spray Lakes—each female giving from 800 to 1,000 eggs—is about three-quarters of a million. At present 524,824 Lock Leven trout eggs, 172,818 Lake Superior Salmon Trout, 516,968 Rainbow, and 5,604,000 Flecked eggs are hatching in the Banff Hatchery. The hatch for 1926 will also include one million Cut-throat eggs imported from Wisconsin and 250,000 from Spray Lakes, making a total of over eight and a half million eggs hatched in the Canadian Pacific Rockies to provide sport for anglers.

The outstanding example of the good results accruing from this work begun in 1914, is the growing annual catch of Lake Superior Salmon Trout at Lake Minnewanka, about nine miles from the C.P.R. Banff Springs Hotel, while Spray Lakes, an easy riding trip from the Hotel is still the favorite Cut-throat fishing area in the Rockies, where fishing is as good as ever in spite of the growing number of anglers.

NOTABLE SUCCESS.

"Pirates of Penzance" In Hong Kong.

TALENTED AMATEURS.

Fine Singing and Good Team Work.

At the Theatre Royal last night, we were taken another step or two backwards in the direction of early Gilbert and Sullivan opera. Nobody would ever dream of troubling about the particular order in which the Savoy operas are staged by the Hong Kong Philharmonic Society, since, with nearly all of them, time seems almost to have stood still. For, even admitting a few pages in "The Pirates of Penzance" where, naturally enough, Sullivan's hand had not come to full maturity, who will deny the music's extraordinary aptness to the words and situations; its charm and easy vivacity, or the brilliance of the composer's flashes of humour?

In "The Pirates," moreover, we see Gilbert at his most absurdly whimsical—as Frederic, that exemplary "slave of duty" would have put it. It was pleasant last evening to find that most of his companions, with him in perennial youthfulness of spirits. They gave us, at any rate, as good as, and in some two respects better a performance than any that I can recall and I have seen many amateur productions of this opera.

Good Team Work. I hope that, without being accused of displaying undue generosity, I may say that one looks, as a matter of course, for first rate team work where the "Phil" is concerned; yet, with one or two exceptions which will be noted later, "The Pirates," as it seemed to me, showed them to better advantage than in some of their productions during recent years. This applies with particular force to the work of the chorus, whose singing sustained a very high level throughout.

Were Major-General Stanley's "pure and peerless" daughters for their part, inspired to give of their vocal best by the pleasure they must have experienced in being tricked out in such ravishingly pretty dresses and hats? In any case, they were most pleasing to look at, as well as to hear. Practically all the principals were familiar, from the model Major-General downwards. Mr. A. J. Brock gives one the impression that this is his first appearance in this role. He reeled off the famous patter song once or twice at a rate which precluded perfect clearness and made it difficult at moments for the orchestra to keep pace with him.

The Singing. The chief singing honours went to Mrs. A. M. Bowes-Smith, whose delightfully fresh, sympathetic voice has never, perhaps, sounded more appealing, either in "Poor Wandering One"—sung with exemplary purity and neatness—or the delicious "Oh! Leave me not to pine alone" in which her soft, delicate tones were a delight to hear. In this—one of Sullivan's happiest inspirations—the expressive delicacy of her singing was hardly matched by Mr. D. M. Richards, the Frederic of the cast. Mr. Richards, who, he it said at once, was word perfect, gave me the impression that he was too conscious of his audience. As the Pirate King, Mr. R. M. Keown was far more comfortable when singing. His rendering of "Oh, better far to live and die" was all that the most ardent Savoyard could wish for. I have not seen Mrs. Katt before. I sincerely hope that I shall see—and, incidentally, hear—her again. As Ruth, the Pirate Maid-of-all-work, this artist was most appropriately cast. I notice that a morning contemporary has described this as being "superb,"—I agree.

Clever Acting. Engr-Lieut. A. S. Bedells gave a first rate impression of the Sergeant of Police. As a matter of fact, in my humble opinion, this was the cleverest piece of work of the whole performance. Lieut. Bedells reminded me very much of Leo Sheffeld, who plays the part in the D'Oyly Carte Company. This, of course, is not a long part. Perhaps it can scarcely be called a big part. Nevertheless, it is a by-no-means easy part. It is certainly a part which can very easily be overdone. The song

"When a felon's not engaged in his employment" brought down the house.

I have already referred to the work of the chorus. With regard to the minor principals, it may be said with little fear of contradiction, that each played his or her part in a manner which did much to complete this very satisfactory stage picture.

The Orchestra. Let me add that Mr. W. R. Fleming's conducting was beyond reproach. Under his very sure and sympathetic guidance the orchestra playing combined delicacy and vitality in a style that proved rarely exhilarating, and gave an added feeling of freshness to the music at every turn.

This is a show to see.

—H.

Sergeant of Police, Engr-Lieut. A. S. Bedells, R.N.
Mabel (General Stanley's daughter), Mrs. A. M. Bowes-Smith.

Kate (General Stanley's daughter), Miss D. Panchen.
Isabel (General Stanley's daughter), Miss V. M. Jefford.
Ruth (Pirate Maid-of-all-work), Mrs. G. Watt.

The Chorus.

The chorus consists of Mesdames Alabaster, Carr, Clark, Cornaby, Farrar, Greenway, Hayward, Hooper, Horder, Hollidge, Hunt, Millard, Magill, Marcel, Stranek, Wallace, Misses Aris, Cole, Dunn, McClay, Razavet, Shaw, "Spanton" Stuart, and Stubbings and Messrs. Almann-Ward, Baldwin, Barnett, Bennett, Best, Brown, Hargreaves, Brown, Bray, Harmon, Hallward, Harvey, Hoare, Jefford, Jeffries, Fehlick, Frowan, Rycroft, Rushton, Spenceclay, Sutherland, Taylor, R. D. Thomas, E. C. Thomas, Thompson and Westlake.

The scenery, designed by Mr. R. S. W. Peterson, and painted by Mr. Chan Sik-fung, and the stage lighting effects by Messrs. Colos and Derrick are all that could be desired. The same can also be said of the men's costumes by Burkinshaw (Liverpool), Ah Men and Hing Cheong, and ladies' dresses by Ah Hung and the Pioneer Silk Store.

TOO WELL-DRESSED.

ROBBERS FAIL TO PASS AS WORKMEN.

Sentence of eighteen months' hard labour was imposed on a "boy" employed at Repulse Bay Hotel who was convicted at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday of having been in unlawful possession of a dagger.

Evidence was given by a Chinese detective who seized the defendant as he rushed from a house in company with three other men. The "dagger" found in his possession consisted of a sharpened three-cornered file.

The woman of the house said that when asked his business he replied that he had come to white-wash the house. As he was too well dressed to be a workman witness became alarmed. She accused him of being a robber and, rushing to the back door, gave the alarm.

Mr. McCallum, who appeared for accused, submitted that the whole case was a put up job by the Chinese detective in conjunction with the defendant's alleged friend who had previously borrowed money from him. The Court convicted the defendant and passed sentence of eighteen months' hard labour.
